L. W. Buchanan Named Chairman of Nevada County Navy Relief

Leslie W. Buchanan has been named chairman of the Nevada County drive for the Navy Relief Society which is seeking $34,000 in Arkansas. It has been announced by Edward L. Wright of Little Rock state chairman of the drive.

Euzelian Sunday School Class Meets Tuesday Night

The Euzelian Sunday school class of the First Baptist church met Tuesday night at the home of Mrs. C. A. Robinson, with Mrs. J. L. Toland, Mrs. Harold Lewis, Mrs. Lloia, and Mrs. R. I. Anderson as co-hostesses.

The business meeting was presided over by the president, Mrs. Dallas Atkins.

During the social hour games were enjoyed by the twenty-five members present, the hostesses served a delicious salad plate.

Society

Mrs. S. R. Crawford left Tuesday for Abilene, Texas where she will visit her daughter, Miss Evelyn McKenzie.

Mrs. Sam O. Logan is in Dallas visiting her daughter, Mrs. Steel Moore and Mr. Moore.

Ralph Moncrief has returned to his home in Shreveport, La., after being the guest of his mother, Mrs. Gretna Moncrief.

Captain and Mrs. Brad Scott and children of Brownwood, Texas are the guests of relatives and friends. I. B. Humphreys, A. E. Humphreys of Denver, Colorado and Bob Racey of Oakland, California were Tuesday business visitors in Prescott.

Miss Bunice Bradley of Emerson has arrived to spend the summer with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Bradley.

Mrs. Louis Suckle has returned from a six weeks visit in Miami Beach, Florida.

Chaplin Is Heading West?

By RAY PEACOCK
Wide World Features Writer

NEW YORK—Who is this fellow Danny Kaye that he should rate a six-figure movie contract?

Six unemotional Broadwayites gave me six answers which add up to the same thing: Danny Kaye is the finished product, a comedian who is genuinely funny.

He is, they said, well grounded in fundamentals. Has excellent material and doesn't overdo it. Has a good personality. Has expressive hands, reminiscent of Chaplin. Is an originator, not imitator. That's five answers.

The sixth, from a girl: "He's

He Can Do Everything

Add flexibility for good measure. As the central figure in "Let's Face It," a musical comedy embellished with Cole Porter songs, Danny is the guy everybody picks on the outraged lover, the little boy who can't find a listener, the Dracula who terrorizes the females.

Tall and slender, with good shoulders and attractive face despite a longish nose, Danny looks like no body but himself. His blond hair thick unto bushy, is wild and subdued by turns. And his hands are never still.

He Went Boom

As a comedian, he started at the bottom with a don't-say-the-vulgar-word fall. This famous and fortunate accident happened at Utica N. Y., while Danny was a member of a starchy dance act which had crossed several oceans without causing a ripple. He tripped, and sat on the stage feeling pain and disgrace. The audience laughed and a career was born. In the last three years Danny has graduated from $40 to sometimes $4,000 a week.

Comparison of Danny with Chaplin is heard often. He denies he ever consciously imitated anyone, but if he has a hero, it is the old master of pantomime.

"I saw Chaplin's 'Gold Rush' the other day," Danny told me. "I never laughed once. I was too fascinated, watching a genius. You have to have a leaning for comedy. I used to be the neighborhood drugstore comic in Brooklyn, and I don't think I'd ever want to be anything but a comedian."

It is a matter of record that Guthrie McClintic, Gabriel Pascal and others have wanted to cast him in serious parts, and that Edward Johnson, head of the Metropolitan Opera, pointed to Danny and said, "There is the perfect Figaro."

His right name is David Daniel Kohnsmit, and he's 29. His father was an immigrant Polish tailor who now patronizes other tailors, thanks to Danny. The two writers who have helped him to success will write and edit his film material. One is Max Liebman, the other Sylvia Fine. In private life she is Mrs. Kaye, and she too thinks that Danny is a very funny fellow.

Before the war, Japan was one of the principal exporters of canaries to the United States.

FORGOTTEN TAHITI

Papeete, Tahiti — —European residents of Tahiti are complaining over the acute shortage of canned meats, which were the staple diet of some 99 per cent of them. War trappings rest more lightly on the natives, who have returned readily to their native diet of fish fowl and island vegetables.

IGNORES RATIONING

Dover, N.H. — —Miss Helen Cassily lost her pocketbook in a Boston railroad station and never expected to see it again. She had no way of knowing, of course, that it was found in a telephone booth by J. E. Hughes of Everett, Mass., who was so honest he used his automobile, tires, gasoline and nearly all of his day off to drive 120 miles to Dover and leave the purse at Miss Cassily's home.

BRITISH SMOKE MORE

Manchester — —During 1941 Britain consumed 221,810,000 lbs of tobacco, 30,000,000 lbs more than in 1940.

New Hampshire has two square miles of inland water area.

Social Calendar

Thursday, May 14th

A joint meeting of all P. T. A. organizations of the city will be held at the high school, 3:30 for the purpose of installing new officers. Door prizes will be awarded.

Mrs. A. E. Slusser will be hostess to the Pat Claibourn chapter of the United Daughters of the Confederacy, 3 o'clock.

Thursday Evening Contract bridge club, home of Mr. and Mrs. George Ware, 8 o'clock.

Azalea Garden club, home of Mrs. George Newbern, Jr., with Mrs. Syd McMath as associate hostess, 9:30 o'clock.

Friday, May 15th

The Service Prayer Group will meet at the First Baptist church, 3 o'clock. All interested persons of all churches are cordially invited to attend.

Saturday, May 16th

Miss Sara Ann Holland has been named honoree at a bridge-luncheon to be given by Mrs. Carter Johnson and Mrs. Leo Robins at the Johnson home, 1 o'clock.

Mrs. A. J. Neighbors is hostess to Tuesday Club

The Tuesday Contract bridge club met at the home of Mrs. A. J. Neighbors Tuesday afternoon with Mrs. M. M. McClaughan and Mrs. George Meacham as substitute players.

Lovely arrangements of spring blossoms adorned the rooms where two tables were arranged. Mrs. McClaughan was high for the guests and Mrs. L. W. Young received the club high gift.

A delicious ice course was served at the conclusion of the games.

Weekly Games for Wednesday Club at the home of Mrs. Gorin

Mrs. Jim Gorin entertained the members of the Wednesday Bridge club with the weekly games Wednesday afternoon at her home.

For making high scores, Mrs. Helen McRae and Mrs. Annis Mac Hutchinson received prizes. Bridge was played from 2 tables in the living room, which was gayly decorated with early summer flowers.

After the games a delectable ice course was served the members and one guest, Mrs. Ralph Routon.

D. A. R. Chapter in Social Meeting

Mrs. J. G. Martindale, regent of the John Cain chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution, presided at the business session of the May meeting, which was in the form of a pot luck luncheon at the home of Mrs. R. E. Cain, West Third Street, Wednesday at 1 o'clock. Mrs. J. M. Houston, Mrs. J. J. Battle of Fulton, and Miss Mary Catts of Washington were co-hostesses.

After the impressive D. A. R. ritual, the minutes of the previous meeting were read by Miss Catts, who substituted for the secretary. Mrs. Martindale read the report of last year's work and Mrs. Houston told of the successful finishing of the Red Cross sewing room.

It was reported by Mrs. O. A. Graves that a number of new books have been donated by the chapter for the Hempstead county room at Camp Robinson.

Mrs. Gus Haynes, as chairman of the stamp committee, reported that she had sent 3 pounds of cancelled stamps to the headquarters in New York City from where they will be sent with stamps from all parts of the country to London. She stated that she plans to make another shipment soon and urges all who are saving stamps to send them to her immediately.

Mrs. Catherine Howard and Miss Daisy Dorothy Heard were unanimously elected to membership in the chapter, to become active as soon as their papers are sent to Washington.

Miss Carolyn Trimble, the D. A. R. pilgrimage representative to Chicago, was a guest at the luncheon. She was elected corresponding secretary of the Good Citizenship Club of 1942.

Mrs. Charles Haynes, state vice-regent, attended the National Congress and gave interesting highlights of the convention. She urged all D. A. R. members to actively participate in Civil Defense and to purchase Victory Bonds.

The president General's message was read by Miss Mamie Twitcheil.

The number of hours devoted to defense work was recorded by the acting secretary and all were urged to keep a record.

Mrs. Gus Haynes gave an interesting resume of the life and work of Mrs. Carolyn Scott Harrison, the first President General, National Society, D. A. R.

It was announced that the chapter will participate in the annual Flag Day celebration with other D. A. R. chapters of Southwest Arkansas in Texarkana, June 14.

Mrs. F. Y. Trimble, mother of Miss Carolyn Trimble, was a guest of the chapter and members from several surrounding towns attended.

Off in a Flash — With a Flash!

Stillwater, Okla. — The rubber situation being what it is, Jim deGruchy equipped himself with materials for repairing tires, including a flashlight for night work. One night the thump, thump, thump of a rear tire told him the time was at hand to put his kit to work. He jerked off the casing, applied a patch to the tube and pumped it up. Back in his car, he was surprised shortly thereafter to hear the thump, thump, thump of the same tire. Out got deGruchy, off came the casing. Inside he found what was left of his flashlight.

Library Notes

A copy of "Arms for Living" by Gene Tunney is now on the shelf of the Hempstead county library. This title was recommended by H. L. Bart, managing editor of Sea Power, Magazine of the Navy League of the United States, to Mayor Albert Graves. Lt. Com-Tunney explains in his book with diagrams, many exercises to build up both the civilian and military population. It should help in the Civilian Defense Councils.

A million of our boys are now being called to the service of their country. Many feel that their lives are being interrupted. Their careers blocked. What can military service give a fellow? They are asking. Gene Tunney, former world's heavyweight champion of the prize ring, now again in active service, tells them in this new book of his. He gives concrete advice based on his own life. He explains how he won mental, moral and physical fitness in his years of service and how they can, too. He explains specifically how he profited by the qualities he acquired in his war years and turned them into fame and fortune.

He says to the young men of the Army and Navy, "I did it, you can do it too!" And in these inspiring and practical pages he shows them precisely how they can follow in his footsteps.

Included in this book are the official exercises that Lieut. Com-Tunney has originated for use in the Physical Fitness Program of the Navy.

The copy was donated to the Hempstead County Library by the City of Hope.

Man belongs scientifically to the zoological division of chordates, distinguished by having an actual or rudimentary spinal cord.

came the bride of Miles Laha of Hope in a quiet ceremony performed in the presence of a few relatives and intimate friends in Prescott, March 28.

After June 1, Mrs. Laha will join her husband in Hope, where he is connected with the Southwestern Proving Ground.

38 Years in U.S. Marines

Brig. Gen. Emile P. Moses, commandant of the U. S. Marine Corps base at Parris Island, S. D., has been an officer of the Marine Corps for the past 38 years, one-third of which were spent beyond the continental limits of the United States.

Born in Sumpter, S. C., May 27, 1880, Gen. Moses graduated from the University of South Carolina in 1900 and attended the Georgia
School of Technology before entering the Marine Corps as a second lieutenant in 1904.

His career as a Soldier of the Sea had hardly begun when he was assigned to duty outside the U. S. A., being sent to Panama in December, 1905, for a year's expeditionary duty. Two years later he went to Cuba as a first lieutenant.

Gen. Moses also performed duties in Cuba from May to August, 1912, and in Nicaragua from September to November, 1912, where he took part in the capture of fortifications at Coyotepe and Barranca and the occupation of Leon.

In January, 1909, Gen. Moses was dispatched to the Hawaiian Islands where he served until August of the same year. He returned to Hawaii as a major in May, 1919,

for a tour of two and a half years.
Gen. Moses is well acquainted with the Pacific Island of Guam, starting point of two wars, having served there as a Marine Corps captain for a year and seven months in 1914-16.

As a lieutenant-colonel he was assigned to duty with the Fourth Regiment of Marines in China
from May, 1927, until June, 1929.

He returned to China in 1932 when skirmishes between Japanese and Chinese forces began, and remained until March, 1934, when he was assigned to duty as commander of the Marine barracks at Cavite, Philippine Islands.

In 1939 Gen. Moses was appointed president of the Marine Corps Equipment Board at Quantico, Va., a post he held until he was transferred to Parris Island in 1941.

Gen. Moses' studies did not end when he entered the Marine Corps.
He is a graduate of the Naval War College, the Army War College and the Army Artillery School.

Among medals earned by Gen. Moses are the Nicaraguan campaign medal, Mexican campaign medal, Victory medal, Yangtze medal and the Marine Corps expeditionary medal.

THE STORY—After six years on a little Dutch island in the Caribbean, Bill Talcott is to be relieved of his branch manager job with an American chemical firm and join the Army. His successor, Halsey, arrives with an auditor who immediately charges Bill with a $128,000 shortage in his accounts. Bill, innocent, is furious. That Paterson, Halsey's cousin, Bill's college roommate, goes for a walk with Halsey, whom she has met on the boat. Bill warns her it is not safe, but stays behind with a stranger named MacDowell.

"YOU'RE A DETECTIVE"

CHAPTER III
TALCOTT was at the door when MacDowell moved suddenly, blocking his path. "Let 'em go," the mustached one grunted. "If I know my women, that one can take care of herself."

Talcott stood tensed, glaring down. "You may be a very smart man where you come from, Mr.
MacDowell, but you don't know
Abas Island!"

MacDowell shrugged. "Why all the ruckus? She's got Halsey with her. And believe me, he's the kind that don't scare so easy. Or maybe," MacDowell sucked at his teeth, grinned knowingly, said,
"maybe you go for her yourself,
huh?"

Bill ignored the thrust, stepped back and slapped his hands. In immediate response a shadow loomed from the darkness of the terrace behind MacDowell and the mustached one turned defensively.

Bill said quietly, "Buckra white man and missy go out against my orders. Make Sebastian follow them."

The black boy nodded, said,
"Yes, baas," and disappeared into the night.

MacDowell exhaled with relief,

wiped sweat from his face, bit off the end of a cigar and remained in place before the door. "What is this?" he drawled. "Mean to tell me nobody can take a walk around here?"

"You may take all the walks you like. It so happens that there are several hundred blacks on the island, and they're bad sometimes.
Miss Paterson will be the first white woman that some of them have ever seen. I wouldn't care to be responsible for what might happen."

MacDowell's face became gray and the unlighted cigar sagged.
"Good Lord, man, why didn't you tell us before? If I'd known it was like that, I wouldn't've stopped you!"

Talcott smiled icily. "I presume you were afraid I might prevent Halsey from telling Miss Paterson something I wouldn't want her to hear."

"Maybe," MacDowell hedged.
He found a match, popped it into flame and dragged on the cigar.
"Who's this guy Sebastian that you sent after them?"

"My overseer. He's half native.
Under usual conditions the men will obey him."

"Under usual conditions," MacDowell frowned and glanced uneasily at the terrace. "Suppose we ought to follow them?"

Talcott didn't answer. Indicating a chair he said, "Sit down.
It's time you and I had a little talk. In my correspondence with Federal Chemical, Halsey and the auditor are accounted for. Your name was never mentioned. I want to know who you are, and your purpose on Abas Island."

The directness of the attack caught the mustached one completely off guard. His eyes rounded, his facial muscles sagged and his mouth made an O. "You mean," he said, wetting his lips,
"you don't know who I am?"

TALCOTT leaned forward until his calloused big-knuckled hand rested on the other's knee. "You are not an employee of Federal

MacDowell hesitated, hefting the revolver. His eyes masked his thoughts now, the veiled, cunning eyes of the paid manhunter.

Chemical and you're not an auditor. I might have thought you followed his opening swiftly. "If
tor, I might have thought you Halsey pocketed those vouchers was a traveling companion, but I doubt if Halsey and Struthers are seeking company just now. So what is your connection?"

Sweat showed above the mustached one's collar and the cigar revolved in his mouth. His face, for a moment, became even grayer. And then, unexpectedly, he laughed.

"That's pretty good!" he chuckled. "You claim you don't know why I'm here. For a minute you had me goin'!"

Starting as it was, the change of front served only to increase Bill Talcott's cold wrath. "I doubt if it has occurred to you," he said icily, "that this frameup of the missing vouchers is as weak as water. By merely lifting a finger
I could have the lot of you tossed in jail. Have you ever seen one of our tropical jails, Mr. Mac-Dowell? They have no roofs, and the sun boils down and there are rats and scorpions—"

"Threatenin', are you?" Ugly red crept through the gray of MacDowell's cheeks. "And I thought you looked like a decent kind of guy. Why, you cheap crook!"

"Be careful how you talk," Talcott said calmly. "It happens that for every one of those vouchers there are two facsimiles. One is in the possession of the steamship lines that carried the nitrates, the ernment official who collects a tax on every pound taken from the island. The remittances have all been made to New York and the bank in Willemstad has a complete record." Bill Talcott leaned forward and his long fingers closed in a steel-like grip on Mac-Dowell's knee. "You and your friends haven't a leg to stand on.
Now, who are you and what is your game?"

"Leggo my knee!" MacDowell yelled.

Bill Talcott's strong fingers released with a disdainful movement and the mustached one rubbed vigorously. The words had brought to his face a mixture of doubt and surprise, and Talcott thinking he could force me to remain here, he'd better devote some of his time to studying Federal Chemical procedure. Only he and Struthers had access to those records and one of them must be the thief. Now, where do you come in?"

MacDOWELL stopped rubbing his knee. Plainly, he was annoyed. Some deep-seated conviction of his was being rudely shaken. His eyes clouded and the burned-out cigar sagged. As if weighing Talcott against some mental standard he sat. Then, slowly, his hand moved to his pocket. It came away, bearing not identification papers, but a wicked, snub-nosed pistol.

"You claim Halsey and Struthers rigged a game on you?" he grunted. "That's what they all say. I had you sized up for a decent sort of guy until you started to use threats. If you're innocent and got something to prove it like you say, I don't see what you're worryin' about. As for you not knowin' why I'm here, that's a laugh. Do I havta show you my badge?"

Talcott stared. "You're a detective?"

"You're startin' to get smart."
A painful flush stole through Bill Talcott's cheeks. He might have guessed the man's identity.
"Who hired you?" Talcott demanded.

MacDowell hesitated, hefting the revolver. His eyes masked his thoughts now, the veiled, cunning eyes of the paid manhunter facing his quarry. To MacDowell it didn't matter whether Talcott was guilty or not; he was doing a job for which he was being paid. His orders were to bring Talcott back if the auditor proved a shortage.
That worry vanished from Mac-Dowell's mind when he saw Talcott's face. Strained, white, tense, alarmed eyes glaring into the blackness beyond the terrace. And then MacDowell heard it. Above the sighing wind in the palms sounded the sudden, imperative bleat of a whistle.

Match Pounds Are Eliminated

By DILLON GRAHAM
Wide World Sports Editor
Atlantic City, N. J. — There'll probably be fewer "dark horse" match winners than usual this year in the Professional Golfers Association championship.

For those first two 18-hole match play rounds have been eliminated. No more will the veterans have to worry about "Black Wednesday," the day some young squirt with a hot putter could oust a star campaigner over the short route.

All matches will be at 36 holes and, at that distance, class generally tells.

The PGA ranks as the top tournament of the year since all of the other big national championships, such as the U. S. Open and amateur title events, have been cancelled because of the war. This year's tourney will be played over the Seaview Country Club course near here, May 25-30, and the low 32 scorers in the 36-hole qualifying round will be eligible for the match play competition, rather than the usual 64.

Bruce Cullbert is the seaview pro and holds the course record of 62. He says Seaview won't be toughened up for the pros. "The layout should offer an interesting and fair test just as it is played the year round."

Byron Nelson, who has been in the finals each of the last three years and is known for his accuracy, likely will be established as the pre-tourney favorite. Vic Ghezzi, who won the 1941 title, by buildings, most of which are bakers when the mercury climbs over 88. The Capital and its Senate and House Office buildings, the Departments of Justice, Interior, Labor and a few others that have air-conditioned quarters, will not let out at all. The trouble is that when a major portion of the government departments and buildings close, the others are stymied, too. So far as Washington is concerned, it looks as if our summer war effort will depend on the weather.

Not long ago, the President took the nation's capital for a ride by suggesting that all the "parasites" get out of town. A couple did. That must have been about all. When the sugar rationing registration started the other day, thousands of would-be registrants were turned away because the District of Columbia, whose inhabitants live and thrive on the war effort, didn't have enough volunteers to handle the crowds. In many sections, less than 50 per cent of the persons who had volunteered for jobs as registrants showed up for work.

One of the big problems before congress today is how to fix it so that the boys on the war fronts from Ireland to Australia can cast their votes in coming elections. In the first World War, more than three million men were deprived of their right to vote. It was in that period that the Democrats lost control of the house of representatives. Just how many men will be affected in the coming elections if no provision is made for their absentee ballots isn't being announced but the President, in his last fireside chat, said we had hundreds of thousands of men overseas. In some congressional districts, that absentee vote could be the balance of power. The

Star for One Afternoon

By DILLON GRAHAM

New York — It was just 20 years ago that baseball saw its last perfect 10-hit game. And only the old-timers will remember the pitcher — Charley Robertson of the Chicago White Sox.

On a sunny, Sunday afternoon, April 30, 1922, in Detroit, Robertson shut out the terrific thumping Tigers 2-0 and not a single Tiger reached first base.

Throughout the baseball world fans asked: Who is this Robertson? For Charley was an unsung rookie, up from Minneapolis. It was his third major league start. He jumped from obscurity to the hall of fame in one leap.

No one can take that record away from Charley but it is all that he will ever be remembered for, because, otherwise, his diamond carer was uneventful and drab. He lasted with the White Sox four years, went to the Browns and passed out of the Big Show. Except for that one afternoon, he was never a star.

Grove, Hubbell, Johnson, Dean, Feller and other great pitchers have come along since but none has been able to duplicate Robertson's feat.

And what about that game?

Detroit was pitching a young ace, Herman Pilleto, who had beaten Cleveland twice on successive days the previous week, and 25,000 filled the stands and overflowed onto the field to see him win. Kid Gleason, the Chicago pilot, was too smart to sacrifice a good pitcher against this sensation. He served up the unheard of recruit, Robertson.

Detroit was the hardest hitting club in the majors, had set a league team batting record the previous year of .316. Its sluggers included such long knockers as Bob Veach, Harry Hellmann, Catcher Manion and the great Ty Cobb.

After five innings of three up and three down, the Tigers began grumbling and kicking. They demanded that the umpire examine Robertson's glove and the glove used by First Baseman Sheely. The arbiter even rubbed his hands over Robertson's uniform and found nothing suspicious.

"Not a trick known to baseball that can be used to rattle a pitcher was neglected," wrote H.G. Salsinger of the Detroit News in a story for Baseball Magazine. But Robertson never wavered nor showed the least sign of concern.

After eight innings, only 24 batters had faced Robertson. Only three balls had been hard hit—a line drive into right by Jones, on which Hooper made a good catch; a low line drive by Veach that Mostil pulled down in left field, and a sharp grounder to Collins by Manion, which Collins fumbled but recovered in time to nip Manion at first.

Came the ninth and Manager Cobb sent up Danny Clark, Detroit's favorite pinch hitter. He went down on three fast balls. Manion hit a weak fly to Clooins. Then Bassler, known as the "hardest man in the league to pitch to," went up to hit for Pilleto.

"See that little fat guy? Well, he's all that stands between me and a no-hit game. What'll I do?" Robertson asked his shortstop.

And the 25-year-old Robertson tried. He threw a slow curve for a strike. Then a fast one, too high. Missed. A fast one, too high. Another fast one and the batter connected. The ball sailed on a line into left field. The fielder leaped and caught it.

Robertson, now living in Texas, was the third pitcher in modern baseball to produce a perfect game. The others were Cy Young and Addie Joss. In many ways Robertson's performance was better than that of the others. For Charley was an untired rookie and his victims were the game's greatest collection of hitters. The A's, whom Young beat in 1904, were not famed as sluggers, and Addie's triumph, in 1908, was against the White Sox, then known as the Hitless Wonders.

The secret of Robertson's success was control. The veteran catcher, Ray Schalk, told him what to throw and where to put it—and he did. On nearly every batter Robertson first served his slow curve for a strike. His fast ball broke sharply upward. Only twice did Robertson have a 3 and 2 count on a batter, once on Lu Blue, who flied out. Eight players were retired on infield flys or foul; six on flys to the outfield, six on strikeouts and seven on ground hit balls.

In his interest has been opened by powerful party leaders. If the gubernatorial race proves to be between Tom Dewey and Jack Bennett, there are a lot of canny analysts who feel that Dewey will win.

This possibility, and the logic behind it, is of national interest for two reasons.

First, because such a Democratic defeat in New York should not be interpreted as a repudiation of President Roosevelt's war policies. The conflict will be one of personalities and of relatively local issues.

Second, because a Dewey victory unquestionably would set the stage for an attempt on his part to obtain the Republican presidential nomination in 1944. If he loses the governorship, his political star will drop fast. If he wins, the Democratic national command can guess what sort of opposition it will face two years from now.

Whisky, No Soda

London — Arthur Coomber who bequeathed his wines, spirits and cigars to William Gilbert, Newmarket saddler, advised in his will: "that the very old whisky distilled in 1895 should not mixed with soda, but be drunk either neat or with two-thirds plain water to one-third of whisky (about)".

Early experiments in dive-bombing were conducted by U. S. Marines in Italy in 1920 when the entire Marine aviation group consisted of only 42 pilots.

Public Invited to Unity Church Revival

The Rev. Lovelady addressed the congregation on "The New Birth" at the Unity Baptist Church here Wednesday night. Services are being held twice daily at 10 a. m. and 8 p. m.

The public is invited to attend the revival.

The Sun Shines Bright

Huntington, W. Va. — The sun shone very bright here the other day, so bright it started two fires—one in a paint shop, where a barrel of rags behind a plate glass window caught fire; the other in an automobile, where a crystal ball lying on the seat focused the sun's rays.

What about A&P LOW PRICES now that everybody is talking about CEILING PRICES?

- Now, and after May 18th (when ceiling prices become effective), all A&P Super Markets and A&P Food Stores will continue to give you real low prices on fine foods every day, just as they have been doing.
- The new "ceiling price" regulation will not alter in any way A&P's low price policy. This means that every day at A&P you will continue to get the best foods the markets afford at our lowest possible prices.
- And here is another important fact to remember. FOOD PRICES WILL NOT BE IDENTICAL IN ALL FOOD STORES on and after May 18th. Prices will continue to differ in food stores on the same articles — just as they have heretofore.

OUR CUSTOMERS SAVE MONEY

A&P, during the last eight years, has made big reductions in its operating costs. These savings have been passed along to our customers, so that today they have 9c more of every food dollar to spend than they did in 1933.

It is A&P's policy to continue to conduct its business as economically as possible, thus to give you the utmost for every food dollar you spend at A&P Stores.
